Love Monarchs? Want to get involved?
Become a Monarch Butterfly Docent!

From November to February, the Goleta Monarch Grove is home to thousands of monarch butterflies that migrate to coastal California for the winter. Since 2007, the City of Goleta has trained volunteer docents to provide information to visitors at the Ellwood Main Monarch Grove, located at Sperling Preserve/Ellwood Mesa Open Space.

Our Docents volunteer on Saturdays and Sundays from 11:00 am to 1:00 pm and 1:00 pm to 3:00 pm and offer field trips for school and community groups. As a docent, you must commit to at least one docent shift per month. Docents do not need have any previous experience or butterfly knowledge – just a love for nature and the monarchs!
